

Carrboro's Really Really Free Market 10 Year Anniversary

What Is the Really Really Free Market?

On the first Saturday of every month in Carrboro, North Carolina, hundreds of people come together to share things, meet their needs, and experience what life might be like outside of capitalism. This self-organized event regularly offers a cornucopia of groceries, sweets, clothing, jewelry, toys, furniture, books, seeds, literature, and more, not to mention square dances, puppet shows, and poetry slams. For our ten-year anniversary, we're inviting people from around the country for an all-day free festival!

How Do I Participate?

Enjoy the camaraderie, share delicious food, create a costume from found materials for the fashion show, attend performances and workshops, join in games with kids of all ages. Bring whatever you have in abundance to share. Enter the piñata or birthday cake competition. Set up a booth or a workshop, put on a performance, distribute some resource no one could imagine being free. Manifest your most utopian visions and ungovernable desires! Let's demonstrate how much more nourishing, exciting, and fulfilling our dreams are than anything the market can offer.

...Because
there is enough for everyone.

Contact: carborrhrrfm@riseup.net
Updates: <http://reallyfreecarrboro.info>

Sat., Oct. 4, 2014 • Starting at 2 PM • Carrboro Town Commons
A wild party! A massive festival! A carnival against capitalism!